Prevent Infections. Save Lives.

Washable Keyboards and Mouse

Research based evidence concludes that computer keyboards and other input devices spread infections in healthcare settings, schools and in communal environments.

Computer keyboards and other input devices are a source of bacteria and cross-contamination that can lead to Healthcare-Associated Infections (HAI). Therefore, washable keyboard, mice, TV remotes and mobile products with antimicrobial products protection should be put in place along with proper disinfection protocols to reduce the risk of infections and cross-contamination.
